Teaching and therapy

Learn Different Academy is one school that lives up to its name. It recognises diversity in learners and the fact that not everyone is wired the same way. As more parents in Singapore come to appreciate this simple truth, this private school at Winstedt Road has beefed up its staff. It recently hired two new staff to add to its faculty of specialists. Rachel Vig, an American qualified Occupational Therapist, and Australian Tina Hunter, who has more than 15 years of teaching experience, join the faculty in the areas of Literacy and Maths as part of the school's academic support programme. Learn Different Academy was founded by Sharon Solomon, a 3rd generation Singaporean, to offer a comprehensive mainstream curriculum. Its Language and Literacy department provides after-school learning support for core subjects while Learn Different Integrated Therapy offers Occupational Therapy, Speech Therapy and Art Therapy.
